Front cover image provided by the San José State University Program of Asian American Studies (SJSU AAS). It was created by alumna Joanie Kawashima and circulated in the 1980s as part of the program's informational pamphlet. In reflection of this satirical critique of nativism and anti-Asian sentiment, SJSU AAS is proud that Asian American Studies and Ethnic Studies, more broadly, have been breaking down barriers since their founding in 1968—on the heels of the Third World Liberation Front movement.

This special issue has been made possible through the generous support of The Asian American Foundation.
